

Frontline staff

What we look for

Safe

Learning culture

- How have you learnt about different outcomes for women and babies with protected characteristics?
 - O Is this included in PROMPT, skills and drills and if so, how?
- How are equality characteristics recorded in all clinical records?
- Can you give examples of how learning about inequalities has led to a change in the service you provide?
- Is there a commitment to improving safety for those with equality characteristics at all levels in the organisation?

Safe systems pathways and transitions

 What action has been taken by the service to reduce safety risks for those with equality characteristics?

Involving people to manage risks

• How are risk assessments used to support the care of women and babies with equality characteristics? How are the preferences and choices, including religious and cultural preferences, of those who use services respected, and where possible incorporated into care?

Effective

Assessing needs

 Are care plans personalised to include individual needs and choices for care and treatment including pain relief?

Monitoring and improving outcomes

 How do staff record health inequalities data in incident reviews and how is data interrogated and trends monitored?

Consent to care and treatment:

- How do you ensure women receive information about care and treatment being offered or recommended in a way they can understand before giving consent?
- Are interpretation services always offered, even where a family member would be able to translate?

Responsive

Care provision, integration and continuity

- How do you support women and families with additional healthcare needs? These could include:
 - people with a learning disability,
 - people whose preferred or known language is not English
 - o people with sensory loss for hearing or sight
 - people who have mobility issues
 - people with mental health needs and risks associated with safeguarding.

Providing information

- What information and advice are available to meet individual communication needs?
- How do you ensure that individual communication needs are fully recorded and shared across the maternity pathway?

Well-led

Shared direction and culture

• How are you supported to have a detailed knowledge of equality, diversity and human rights?

Governance management and sustainability

 What data is discussed in your safety huddles and meetings about equality characteristics?

Listening to and involving people

- Is feedback sought from people with protected characteristics and how have any findings influenced changes in your service?
- Is health inequality on your maternity service's risk register?

© Care Quality Commission